A Fantastic Travel in Alaska

POLAR LIGHT

You'll start off in Fairbanks, combining a flightseeing trip and a driving excursion that make this adventure amazing. From late August to mid-September, that adventure begins with a flight to Coldfoot, a remote town located in the Brooks Mountain Range that's perfectly situated under the "auroral oval," where you'll find the best displays of northern lights. On the flight, you'll get an aerial view of the vast northern wilderness.

From Coldfoot you'll drive south in the comfort of one of NATC's tour vehicles and learn the story of Alaska's arctic as you travel along the rugged Dalton Highway. You'll view the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System and cross the Arctic Circle in ceremonious fashion. When the skies get dark,

AWESOME STAY - Get away from it all.

Great location, great room, loved the family running it. Food for breakfast was awesome. Great spot to view Northern Lights. Would go back tomorrow if I could. Internet service was great. Common living area was great.
